Understanding Athletic Recruiting

Wednesday, January 24, 2024
at 5:00 pm (PT) / 8:00 pm (ET)

Is your student thinking about pursuing sports in college? Athletic recruiting is one of the most confusing processes for students and their families because it involves a tricky intersection of parent expectations, student aspirations, coach idiosyncrasies, and conflicting league policies.

In this webinar we speak with two long-time experts to discuss the latest trends in athletic recruiting, including specialization, early commitments, the rise of club sports, the accelerated timeline, and the impact of the pandemic on recruiting from both the coaches' and students' perspectives.

With Special Guests

Holly Burks Becker

Holly Burks Becker has almost 40 years of experience in admission and college counseling. A Division I athlete herself at Dartmouth College, she has facilitated hundreds of potential student-athletes' aspirations in her counseling work, including her own three children, who were college athletes in both Division I and Division III. Mrs. Becker has been a two-sport interscholastic coach for three decades and has worked with numerous high school and college All-Americans.

Jeffrey Durso-Finley, Ed.D

Jeffrey Durso-Finley has worked in admission and college counseling for almost 30 years, including 8 years at Brown University. While at Brown he advised student-athletes and evaluated hundreds, if not thousands, of potential student-athletes in the context of Ivy League admission policy and since that time has helped hundreds more prospective college athletes navigate the world of recruiting across Divisions and conferences.
